Alternative Livelihood Program

Among the highlights of SIKHAY-related activities for the year was the established partnership with the Burundian Women for Peace and Development (BWPD), a foundation established by Burundian women living in The Netherlands. The partnership was made possible through the initiative of Transnational

On October 17 – November 05, 2015, six Burundian community leaders arrived in the Philippines for a Trainers’ Training under the project, “Alternative Livelihood Skills Training for Burundian Women.” The Burundian Women for Peace and Development (BWPD), in partnership with the Development Action for Women Network (DAWN), spearheaded the project supported by the Transnational Synergy and Cooperation for Development (TRANSCODE), CEI and CordAid.

The three-year project endeavours to capacitate the BWPD community leaders with necessary competencies, knowledge, and skills in entrepreneurial development and management which they will

The training on basic handloom weaving took place from October 19 – 28, 2015. The trainers included Mary Jane Kuraoka, Gilda Mosatalla, Anna Liza Yambao, and Mary Joy Barcelona. The trainees identified the parts of the machines, computed the needed length and width of threads to be used, and executed hand-weaving.

They were also taught how to finish the various items, make tassels and trimming.

Each trainee was assigned to make products using their own design.

Agnes Ntahompagaze made placemats, Beatrice Murerwa created a scarf, wall décor, and coasters, Nadia Mukazena prepared a table cloth and wall décor, and Pierre Nzeyimana finished a table runner and wall décor.

They visited the Mabini, Batangas and San Pablo, Laguna offices of ATIKHA last October 26 – 27, 2015. They were shown the different products and services offered by ATIKHA to generate income and to continue social development to its members. BWPD, DAWN, and ATIKHA are members of TRANSCODE.

The training on basic handloom weaving was followed by basic sewing training, including industrial machines operation, pattern-making and cutting, and basic sewing. Santa Bodino, one of the DAWN volunteers, assisted in the sewing training with Mary Joy Barcelona, Gilda, Mary Jane and Anna Liza. At the end of the training, the trainees were able to create their own products which are: 1) Nadia made different kinds of bags such as passport bag, shopping bag, back pack, and hallow bag; 2) Agnes created an A-line skirt and open blouse; 3) Beatrice produced an open collar blouse and long skirt; and 4) Pierre sewed long pants and polo shirt. At the end of the training, electronic copies of the lectures were provided for future reference.

The training workshop wrapped up on November 4, 2015. A simple graduation ceremony was given to the BWPD trainees for their outstanding performance during the trainings. The trainees paraded their outputs. Mel Nuqui presented the Certificate of Appreciation to Stephanie Mbanzadore and Severin Minani for the established partnership between DAWN and BWPD and their valuable contribution during the whole course of the training. Accompanied by Stephanie, Mel distributed the certificates to the trainees. The awarding ceremony was followed by an introductory talk about BWPD and its advocacy
